

earth. As the child grows she must show him the green shoots when they pierce the brown soil. She must baffle to him of its Blue Flower. By the time he is pleased by color he will love the blossoms, and the spell of happiness and good fortune will begin to work for him. It is not one person here and there who must plant the flower, but each and every one. To those who have not land about them, all the land is free. You may plant by the roadside, in a cranny of a wall, in an old box or glass or tub, in any bare space in any man's field or garden. But each must plant his seeds and watch over and feed them. Next year, when the Blue Flower blossoms, I shall ride through my kingdom and bestow my rewards. This is my Law."

"What will befall if some of us do not make them grow?" groaned some of the Afraid Ones.

"There is no time to think of that!" shouted the boy who was clever "Plant them!"

Nobody in this country wants a tariff tax on works of art, so the Ways and Means committee report, "except some members of Congress." Unhappily, their motto is, art for tariff's sake.—The Evening Post.

Prohibition may not prohibit, but all the same the saloon is filling hell with drunkards and the alms-houses with widows and orphans.

A FARM TELEPHONE

Will save enough horseflesh and time every month to pay its cost for a year, and in emergencies, when time is the big thing, it may save your home and your life.

Thousands of farms in this country are now equipped with telephones and you could not persuade one of these farmers who has proved its value to allow his telephone to be removed.

It helps to make farm life pleasant and saves money.

You owe it to yourself to have a telephone on YOUR farm. Call on the nearest manager of the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone Company and he will tell you how you can get it at small cost, or address the General Contract Agent, Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone Company, Salt Lake City.
